

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
NORTHERN DIVISION

GHEORGHE GHEORGHITA,

Petitioner,

v.

Case No. 2:03-cv-151
HON. ROBERT HOLMES BELL

LINDA METRISH,

Respondent.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

Petitioner Gheorghe Gheorghita filed this petition for writ of habeas corpus challenging the validity of his state court jury conviction for assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder, and possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony. Petitioner was convicted by a jury on June 21, 1999, and on July 2, 1999, was sentenced to a prison term of 6 years and 8 months to 10 years imprisonment on the assault conviction and 2 years on the felony firearm conviction.

Petitioner maintains that his conviction was obtained in violation of his federal rights. The respondent has filed an answer and has complied with Rule 5 of the Rules Governing Section 2254 Cases in the United States District Courts. The parties have briefed the issues and the matter is now ready for decision. In accordance with 28 U.S.C. § 636(b), authorizing United States Magistrate Judges to submit proposed findings of fact and recommendations for disposition of prisoner petitions, I am recommending that this petition for writ of habeas corpus be denied.

Petitioner has raised the following issues in his petition:

I. Petitioner was denied effective assistance of trial counsel where his trial counsel failed to preserve petitioner's right to a preliminary examination, as well as, counsel's failure to object to numerous instances of gross prosecutorial misconduct.

II. Petitioner was denied his fourteenth amendment right to due process as the result of gross prosecutorial misconduct in introducing 404(b) evidence without prior notification, as well as, grossly improper closing arguments.

III. Petitioner was denied his constitutional right to an effective appeal of right by appellate counsel's failure to raise and properly federalize the issues set forth herein.

IV. The cumulative effect of all the aggregate errors violated the petitioner's constitutional right to a fair trial, as well as, denied the petitioner effective assistance of counsel, both at the trial level, and on his original appeal of right.

In April of 1996, the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (AEDPA) became effective. Because this petition was filed after the effective date of the AEDPA, this Court must follow the standard of review established in that statute. Pursuant to the AEDPA, an application for writ of habeas corpus on behalf of a person who is incarcerated pursuant to a state conviction cannot be granted with respect to any claim that was adjudicated on the merits in state court unless the adjudication: "(1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or (2) resulted in a decision that was based upon an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the state court proceeding." 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d).

The AEDPA limits the source of law to cases decided by the United States Supreme Court. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d). This provision marks a "significant change" and prevents the district court from looking to lower federal court decisions in determining whether the state decision is contrary to, or an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law. Herbert v. Billy, 160 F.3d 1131, 1134 (6th Cir. 1998). To justify a grant of habeas corpus relief under this provision of the AEDPA, a federal court must find a violation of law “clearly established” by holdings of the Supreme Court, as opposed to its dicta, as of the time of the relevant state court decision. Williams v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 362 (2000). Recently, the Supreme Court held that a decision of the state court is “contrary to” such clearly established federal law “if the state court arrives at a conclusion opposite to that reached by this Court on a question of law or if the state court decides a case differently than this Court has on a set of materially indistinguishable facts.” Id. at 413. A state court decision will be deemed an “unreasonable application” of clearly established federal law “if the state court identifies the correct governing legal principle from this Court’s decisions but unreasonably applies that principle to the facts of the prisoner’s case.” Id. A federal habeas court may not find a state adjudication to be “unreasonable” “simply because that court concludes in its independent judgment that the relevant state-court decision applied clearly established federal law erroneously or incorrectly.” Id. at 411. Rather, the application must also be “unreasonable.” Id. Further, the habeas court should not transform the inquiry into a subjective one by inquiring whether all reasonable jurists would agree that the application by the state court was unreasonable. Id. (disavowing Drinkard v. Johnson, 97 F.3d 751, 769 (5th Cir. 1996)). Rather, the issue is whether the state court’s application of clearly established federal law is “objectively unreasonable.” Id.

The AEDPA requires heightened respect for state factual findings. Herbert v. Billy, 160 F.3d 1131, 1134 (6th Cir. 1998). The habeas corpus statute has long provided that the factual findings of the state courts, made after a hearing, are entitled to a presumption of correctness. This presumption has always been accorded to findings of state appellate courts, as well as the trial court. See Sumner v. Mata, 449 U.S. 539, 546 (1981); Smith v. Jago, 888 F.2d 399, 407 n.4 (6th Cir. 1989), cert. denied, 495 U.S. 961 (1990). Under the AEDPA, a determination of a factual issue made by a state court is presumed to be correct. The petitioner has the burden of rebutting the presumption of correctness by clear and convincing evidence. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(1); see also Warren v. Smith, 161 F.3d 358, 360-61 (6th Cir. 1998), cert. denied, 577 U.S. 1040 (1999).

Petitioner argues that his counsel erred by failing to move for a second preliminary examination. The Michigan Court of Appeals rejected this claim:

We reject defendant's claim that defense counsel was ineffective for not moving for a new preliminary examination after learning that the original preliminary examination transcript and reporter's notes had been lost or destroyed. First, defendant was not entitled to a new preliminary examination on the same charge. People v. Skowronek, 57 Mich App 110, 113-114; 226 NW2d 74 (1974). Second, defendant cannot demonstrate prejudice because there is no basis in the record for concluding that defendant would not have been bound over on the same charges had a second preliminary examination been held.

Petitioner also claims that his attorney erred for failing to object to numerous instances of prosecutorial misconduct. The Michigan Court of Appeals similarly rejected these claims, stating:

We also find meritless defendant's claim that counsel was ineffective because she failed to assert certain objections. We have reviewed the record and find no indication that the prosecutor attempted to introduce defendant's prior conviction. Therefore, no error can result from the failure to object to defendant's prior conviction. Defendant has also failed to demonstrate that trial counsel was ineffective for failing to object to the prosecutor's remarks during closing argument. The prosecutor's remarks during closing argument were not improper.

In order to prevail on a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel, petitioner must show that counsel's errors were so serious that he was not functioning as counsel guaranteed by the Sixth Amendment, and that there is a reasonable probability that, but for counsel's unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding would have been different. Wong v. Money, 142 F.3d 313, 319

There has been ineffective assistance of counsel where an attorney's performance is so deficient as to prejudice the defense and render the trial unfair and the result unreliable. Wong, 142 F.3d at 319; Austin v. Bell, 126 F.3d 843, 847 (6th Cir. 1997), cert. denied, 118 S. Ct. 1547 (1998). Even if a court determines that counsel's performance was outside the wide range of professionally competent assistance, the petitioner is not entitled to relief if his counsel's error had no effect on the judgment. Tucker v. Prelesnik, 181 F.3d 747, 754 (6th Cir. 1999). Rather, a petitioner must show that the probability that the outcome of the case would have been different but for counsel's unprofessional errors is sufficient to undermine confidence in the result. Wong, 142 F.3d at 319; Austin, 126 F.2d at 848. "The performance and prejudice components of the Strickland test are mixed questions of law and fact." Austin, 126 F.2d at 848.

The court's review of defense counsel's performance is highly deferential, and defense counsel is presumed to have rendered adequate assistance by exercising reasonable professional judgment and sound trial strategy. Wong, 142 F.3d at 319; Austin, 126 F.3d at 848. The petitioner must overcome the presumption that, under the circumstances, the challenged actions might be considered sound trial strategy. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 689; Tucker v. Prelesnik, 181 F.3d 747, 754 (6th Cir. 1999). Petitioner has failed to present any claim to the court which could overcome the presumption that counsel performed adequately. The Michigan Court of Appeals' decision did not result in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or result in a decision that was based upon an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the state court proceeding.

Petitioner asserts that the prosecutor erred by asserting 404(b) evidence without prior notification and by making an improper closing argument. Petitioner's claims clearly lack merit. Ultimately, the issue for the Court is whether the prosecutor's conduct denied petitioner a fundamentally fair trial. Smith v. Phillips, 455 U.S. 209, 219, 102 S. Ct. 940 (1982). See also United States v. Carroll, 26 F.3d 1380 (6th Cir. 1994) (adopting test for evaluation of prosecutorial misconduct on direct review); Serra v. Michigan Department of Corrections, 4 F.3d 1348 (6th Cir. 1993) (applying similar test to habeas action). Inappropriate remarks or conduct by a prosecutor constitute a matter of constitutional concern only when it is egregious enough to deprive the defendant of a fair trial. See United States v. Chambers, 944 F.2d 1253 (6th Cir.), cert. denied, 112 S. Ct. 1217 (1992); United States v. Mohnney, 949 F.2d 1397, 1400 (6th Cir. 1991), cert. denied, 112 S. Ct. 1940 (1992); Paprocki v. Foltz, 869 F.2d 281 (6th Cir. 1989).

Petitioner's claim regarding 404(b) evidence fails to rise to the level of a habeas claim. In his first claim, petitioner contends that the trial court abused its discretion when it admitted evidence where the probative value was outweighed by the prejudicial effect contrary to Michigan state law. However, "such an inquiry . . . is no part of a federal court's habeas review of a state conviction." Estelle v. McGuire, 502 U.S. 62, 67 (1991). In Estelle v. McGuire, the Supreme Court addressed the issue of whether the admission of evidence in violation of California state law entitled a petitioner to habeas corpus relief.

We have stated many times that "federal habeas corpus relief does not lie for errors of state law." Lewis v. Jeffers, 497 U.S. 764, 780, 110 S. Ct. 3092, 3102, 111 L. Ed. 2d 606 (1990); see also Pulley v. Harris, 465 U.S. 37, 41, 104 S. Ct. 871, 874-75, 79 L. Ed. 2d 29 (1984). Today, we reemphasize that it is not the province of a federal habeas court to reexamine state-court determinations on state-law questions. In conducting habeas review, a federal court is limited to deciding whether a conviction violated the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States. 28 U.S.C. § 2241; Rose v. Hodges, 423 U.S. 19, 21, 96 S. Ct. 175, 177, 46 L. Ed. 2d 162 (1975) (per curiam).

Estelle v. McGuire, 502 U.S. at 67-8.

The appropriate inquiry is whether the allegedly improper admission of evidence violated the petitioner's constitutional rights. Estelle v. McGuire, 502 U.S. at 68. A federal court will grant habeas corpus relief only where a violation of the state's evidentiary rule results in the denial of fundamental fairness, and therefore, a violation of due process. Brown, III v. O'Dea, 187 F.3d 572, 578 (6th Cir. 1999) (citing Cooper v. Sowders, 837 F.2d 284, 287 (6th Cir. 1988)).

“The standard in determining whether the admission of prejudicial evidence constitutes a denial of fundamental fairness is whether the evidence is ‘material in the sense of a crucial, critical highly significant factor.’” Leverett v. Spears, 877 F.2d 921, 925 (11th Cir. 1989) (quoting Redman v. Dugger, 866 F.2d 387, 390 (11th Cir. 1989)).

Brown, III v. O'Dea, 187 F.3d at 578.

Petitioner has failed to show that the admission of bad acts evidence violated his constitutional rights. In fact, the court instructed the prosecutor, based upon defense counsel's objection, not to introduce evidence of petitioner's prior conviction unless the defense opened the door to that evidence. The prosecutor was allowed to introduce evidence regarding petitioner's extradition to the United States from Canada. The court instructed the witness not to present testimony about petitioner's prior conviction. Trial transcript vol. II 329-339, docket #19. Petitioner has not shown that bad acts testimony was admitted during his trial. Moreover, the prosecutor's closing argument was proper. The Michigan Court of Appeals' decision did not result in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or result in a decision that was based upon an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the state court proceeding.

Petitioner has claimed that his counsel's failure to raise and federalize his claims constitute's ineffective assistance of counsel. Petitioner has failed to show that his counsel was ineffective or that counsel failed to raise any meritorious issues. Further, petitioner's claim of cumulative error lacks merit, because petitioner has failed to show any error.

In summary, the undersigned concludes that petitioner's claims are without merit and therefore recommends that this Court dismiss the petition with prejudice.

In addition, if petitioner should choose to appeal this action, I recommend that a certificate of appealability be denied as to each issue raised by the petitioner in this application for habeas corpus relief. Under 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2), the court must determine whether a certificate of appealability should be granted. A certificate should issue if petitioner has demonstrated a "substantial showing of a denial of a constitutional right." 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2).

The Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals has disapproved issuance of blanket denials of a certificate of appealability. Murphy v. Ohio, 263 F.3d 466 (6th Cir. 2001). Rather, the district court must "engage in a reasoned assessment of each claim" to determine whether a certificate is warranted. Id. Each issue must be considered under the standards set forth by the Supreme Court in Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473 (2000). Murphy, 263 F.3d at 467. Consequently, the undersigned has examined each of petitioner's claims under the Slack standard.

Under Slack, 529 U.S. at 484, to warrant a grant of the certificate, "[t]he petitioner must demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find the district court's assessment of the constitutional claims debatable or wrong." The undersigned concludes that reasonable jurists could not find that a dismissal of each of petitioner's claims was debatable or wrong. Petitioner has failed to show a violation of his constitutional rights. Petitioner cannot show that he received ineffective assistance of counsel or that prosecutorial misconduct occurred during his trial. Therefore, the undersigned recommends that the court deny petitioner a certificate of appealability.

NOTICE TO PARTIES: Objections to this Report and Recommendation must be served on opposing parties and filed with the Clerk of the Court within ten days of your receipt of this Report and Recommendation. 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(C); Fed. R. Civ. P. 72(b); W.D. Mich. LCivR. 72.3(b). Failure to file timely objections constitutes a waiver of any further right to appeal of those issues or claims addressed or resolved as a result of the Report and Recommendation. United States v. Walters, 638 F.2d 947 (6th Cir. 1981). See also Thomas v. Arn, 474 U.S. 140 (1985).
